Rene Andersen

Rene Andersen is a national leader in the fields of trauma, addiction and peer participation. She has served in a variety of leadership positions in not-for-profit organizations. She serves as a consultant, trainer, and developer for recovery-focused programs; recovery from addiction, trauma, and/or extreme states. Her peer-led, trauma-informed, community based work in Greenfield, MA was recently recognized as a best practice by SASMHA. Ms Andersen co-authored a two-day training curriculum, A Public Health Approach to Trauma for the HHS Office on Women's Health.

Rene was the keynote speaker for the US Surgeon General's Summit on Women and Mental Health. Formerly the Associate Executive Director of the Western Massachusetts Training Consortium, she was the principal investigator for five SAMHSA-funded grants including the multi-site research project "Women with Co-Occurring Disorders and Histories of Violence", and the CSAT funded peer-to-peer "Recovery Communities Services Program". Both grant proposals were written in concert with women and men with lived experiences of recovery.

Ms. Andersen consults to local organizations and communities to develop responses to violence and its consequences. Rene's work is founded on both the integration of people with lived experiences in all aspects of service planning and delivery, and on the importance of trauma-informed policies, practices, and programs when supporting recovery efforts. All Ms. Andersen's work is based in the communities in which people live and work.

A trainer and consultant for corporations, community organizations, state and human service agencies, Ms. Andersen's areas of expertise include trauma-sensitive practice, leadership development, program development, community building, and advocacy. She served on the Board of the Windhorse Associates, a meditative therapeutic community for individuals struggling with extreme psychiatric disturbances. She is a founding member of a battered women's shelter; recipient of the Human Service Forum's Manager of the Year award; and is an impassioned advocate for women addicts who are trauma survivors.

Rene is a survivor of early childhood and adult sexual abuse. She is also a psychiatric survivor. Her 26 years of substance abuse recovery coupled with her trauma and psychiatric experiences inform and shape her work. Rene is an impassioned advocate for women and children caught in the web of violence. She is the daughter of a WWII veteran whose life was destroyed by war. She also speaks from the perspective of a family member of siblings and parents with psychiatric challenges.

Shelia Hankins

Ms. Hankins is the Associate Director of the Institute on Domestic Violence in the African American Community at the University of Minnesota. In this capacity she provides leadership in working with national and local projects dedicated to ending domestic violence among African Americans. Specifically her work includes research, policy, community education and awareness, community organizing and developing, and the provision of technical assistance to federally funded and other non-profit organizations. She has 35 years of leadership experience and is recognized nationally for her work in the domestic violence field. Additionally, Ms. Hankins provides training, meeting facilitation and consulting services nationally.

Before assuming her current position, Ms. Hankins held the following leadership positions: Project Director of the Michigan Domestic Violence Prevention and Treatment Board, Vice President of Programs for HAVEN in Oakland County, Michigan; Project Director for Laurel Consulting Group in Laurel, Maryland; and Administrator of the STOP Violence Against Women Grant for the State of Florida's Governor's Task Force on Domestic and Sexual Violence in Tallahassee, Florida. Additionally, Ms. Hankins has held the position of Executive Director of Detroit Women's Justice Center, and of the Downtown and Northwest Branches of the YWCA of Metropolitan Detroit.

Ms. Hankins has focused her professional career and her community service activities on issues related to redressing the economic, political, and social status of traditionally disenfranchised and marginalized communities. She is an advocate for organizational, institutional and systemic changes in our society that will create safe and empowering environments for clients/customers, staff, families, and communities.

She is a co-founder of national Institute on Domestic Violence in the African American Community and has served on the steering committee since 1993. Ms. Hankins also is co-founder and past chair of the Transformation Detroit Project. Ms. Hankins has served on the board of directors for the National Network to End Domestic Violence and the Michigan Coalition Against Domestic Violence.

Ms. Hankins has a Bachelor of Science degree in Education from Wayne State University and numerous post-graduate credits from NOVA Southeastern University in Business Administration. She continues to participate in workshops, seminars, conferences, and other educational forums.

Byron Hurt

Byron Hurt is an award-winning documentary filmmaker, published writer, anti-sexist activist, and lecturer. He is also the former host of the Emmy-nominated television show, REEL WORKS with BYRON HURT. Since 1993, he has been using his craft, his voice, and his writings to broaden and deepen how people think about gender, race, sex, violence, music, and visual media. As an activist, Byron has served as a gender violence prevention educator. The former Northeastern University football quarterback was also a founding member of the Mentors in Violence Prevention (MVP) program, the leading college-based rape and domestic violence prevention initiative for college and professional athletics. Hurt also served as an Associate Director of the first gender violence prevention program in the United States Marine Corps.

Hurt began his professional film career with I AM A MAN: Black Masculinity in America. His most popular documentary to date, however, is Hip-Hop: Beyond Beats and Rhymes (BBR). It premiered at the 2006 Sundance Film Festival and was later broadcast nationally on the Emmy award-winning PBS series Independent Lens (drawing more than 1.3 million viewers). Since then, it has screened at over 100 film festivals worldwide. The Chicago Tribune named it “one of the best documentary films in 2007.” In 2010, MSNBC’s TheGriot.com named Hip-Hop: Beyond Beats and Rhymes one of the Top 10 most important black films of the decade.

In 2008, Hurt released If Five-0 Shoots and Barack & Curtis. Both were critically acclaimed and the latter exploded in the blogosphere as a part of The Masculinity Project, further cementing Hurt as a staple in the independent film world.

As a writer, Byron’s works have been published in several anthologies, including books edited by Michael Eric Dyson and Kevin Powell.

Hurt has been featured in various media publications ranging from The New York Times, Wall Street Journal, The Los Angeles Times; O, The Oprah Magazine to Mother Jones, Black Enterprise, and The Source and XXL Magazines, as well as allhiphop.com. He has also appeared or been heard on NPR, CNN, Access Hollywood, MTV, BET, ABC News World Tonight, NBC-New York, C-Span, and The Michael Baisden Show, among countless other outlets. Comments and reviews of his films can be found all over the Internet and in the blogosphere.

Because of his work, Hurt has lectured at hundreds of campuses, presented at numerous professional conferences, and trained thousands of young men and women on cutting-edge issues.

He has completed his newest documentary, Soul Food Junkies, a film about the history and legacy of soul food for PBS. Visit his website at www.bhurt.com. You can friend him on Facebook. And you can also follow him on Twitter.

About DSS Domestic Violence Programs

Who We Are

The South Carolina Department of Social Services through its Domestic Violence and Batterers Intervention Programs provides assistance for Victims, their Dependents, and Perpetrators of Intimate Partner Violence. SCDSS began funding domestic violence services in 1980. Our guiding principle is that community resources will work together to promote quality services and to promote healthy lives for families experiencing domestic violence.

Our Goals

The goals of Domestic Violence Programs are to prevent and/or reduce the incidence of family violence and ensure accessible emergency shelter and related assistance as it relates to those in need of services for the prevention of Intimate Partner Violence as well as treatment for perpetrators.

Responsibilities

SCDSS is responsible for strategic planning, policy development, technical assistance, monitoring and administration of the State's Family Violence Intervention Program. SCDSS uses the State Appropriation and funds from the Family Violence Prevention and Services Act to contract with non-profit community based agencies to:

- Improve access to services by funding a regionally based network of emergency shelters; each program provides a variety of services including but not limited to: individual crisis counseling, legal and/or client advocacy, and support groups.
- Provide services to perpetrators of domestic violence by approving, monitoring, and providing technical assistance to Batterer Intervention Programs throughout the state.
- Increase public awareness about domestic violence and its impact on the community by requiring contractors to promote community education by sponsoring workshops, public speaking with local civic and private organizations, and contacts with local media.
- Plan and collaborate SCCADVASA and other community partners to provide Domestic Violence training throughout the state
- Collaborate with SCDSS County Offices, SCCADVASA, and Domestic Violence Shelter Programs on the Domestic Violence Liaison Project.
